Cecil Robles

Cecil Robles is the President of Forex Investments, a capital management firm that provides private managed accounts and asset management for a variety of clientele. Mr. Robles' fundamental approach to the spot foreign currency market is to be risk averse. Capital preservation is much more important to portfolio growth than capturing every possible opportunity that presents itself.

Mr. Robles has designed a trading system to recognize conditions wherein the underlying market is in a state of accumulation or distribution of one currency relative to another. Once the market direction has been determined, trades are placed based on price relationship to support and resistance levels and the probability that the trend will continue. Trend line breaks are one of the best ways to determine trend direction, momentum and high probability trades. Mr. Robles also does contrarian trades when price levels are extremely overbought or oversold.
